About

Mission Statement

The Paul Schulte Foundation has existed since 2007, with a focus on providing youth with disabilities the opportunity to gain confidence and realize their potential in education and sports by attending wheelchair basketball camps.

The best camps in the country are hosted and organized by university wheelchair basketball teams. Some of these include The University of Illinois, Edinboro University and the University of Wisconsin – Whitewater. The Head Coaches of each of these university teams, along with their roster of athletes, serve as staff, counselors, and instructors for youth with disabilities over the course of the camp. (Usually ranging from 3 to 5 days) Youth campers gain the experience of staying on a college campus, meeting incredible role models, and learning to set life goals on and off the court. Camp fees typically range from $350-$500. The Paul Schulte Foundation raises and targets funds toward paying for the camp fees of participants whose families could not otherwise afford the experience. The Foundation places it's highest priority on first-time campers.

Gaining a Vision

"After my accident, I received great advice from lots of people who cared about me. But it wasn't until I met an amazing role models using wheelchairs and saw a clear path to where I wanted my life to go, that things really started to change. The advice I had previously been given went from a black-and-white understanding to a full color vision of what was possible. And nothing could hold me back."

– Paul Schulte

What We Do

The Paul Schulte Foundation has existed since 2007, with a focus on providing youth with disabilities the opportunity to gain confidence and realize their potential in education and sports by attending wheelchair basketball camps.

2014: Review

- Fundraising
 - Our 2013 goal was $10,000
 - We achieved $13,406.64 in donations
- Camp
 - The Paul Schulte Foundation holds an annual wheelchair basketball clinic/fundraiser in the greater Cleveland Ohio area. This clinic is targeted at teaching and inspiring young athletes with disabilities in the Cleveland area toward achievement in sport and academics. The clinic consists of individual wheelchair basketball skill instruction, a full court scrimmage, and inspirational messages from members of the USA Men's Paralympic Wheelchair basketball team. This clinic provides local exposure for youth with disabilities to experience the sport of wheelchair basketball and to connect them with role models.
- Scholarships
 - Donated $8185.00 (24 Youth with disabilities) to disabled sports camps.
 - University of Wisconsin Whitewater, University of Illinois, University of Edinboro, University of Alabama, University of Texas at Arlington

Who We Serve

“Thank you for your donation to help me attend the University of Illinois Wheelchair Basketball Camp this year. I have been going there for three years. I always learn something new to improve my game and to teach my teammates every time I go. This year I learned how to handle the ball in traffic and not just throw it to a team member every single time up the court. I am hoping to make the most of the opportunity I have been given by your donation. “

- Caleb V.

“Thank you for giving me a scholarship to the University of Alabama’s basketball camp. I thoroughly enjoyed the camp and learned many valuable skills. Thank you once again for the gift and I highly appreciate it. “

- Austin B.

“ Thank you for the generous scholarship for U of I’s wheelchair basketball camp. By awarding me this scholarship I was able to learn more about wheelchair basketball and was given very helpful tips for the future for on the court and off. This will be my first and last year participating in the camp but I hope to use these skills in the future.”
